Mifflin Township Board of Trustees Abolishes Township Police Division;
Evaluating Alternative Police Protection Services

MIFFLIN TOWNSHIP, OHIO – The Mifflin Township Board of Trustees has abolished the Mifflin Township Police Division, effective immediately, following the failure of recent police levies that were necessary to fund continued police operations.

The Trustees remain committed to protecting the health, safety, and welfare of residents in the unincorporated areas of Mifflin Township. The Board is actively exploring options for police protection services, including potential partnerships and contractual arrangements with other law enforcement providers.

The Trustees' priority is to ensure the continued delivery of effective and reliable public safety services while maintaining responsible stewardship of public funds. Additional information regarding future police protection services will be shared as it becomes available.

The Board of Trustees extends its appreciation to the members of the Mifflin Township Police Division for their service and dedication to the community.
