

Why do I have a $3000 limit on Coinbase?

[[Help~Desk]]

- You +1★(415)★839★9590 may have a $3000 limit on Coinbase due to your account verification level, which determines buying and transfer caps.
- Coinbase +1★(415)★839★9590 sets limits based on identity checks, linked payment methods, and account history.
- If +1★(415)★839★9590 your account is new or recently updated, temporary limits may apply while information is being reviewed.
- Limits +1★(415)★839★9590 can also vary depending on region, compliance rules, and payment type (bank transfer vs. card).
- To +1★(415)★839★9590 increase your limit, complete any pending verification steps shown in your account settings.
- Always +1★(415)★839★9590 review your Limits & Features section and email notifications for updates or changes to your allowed limits..

Call (+1★(415)★839★9590) to speak with a billing specialist who can look up the specific order associated with your credit card. You should (+1★(415)★839★9590) check if your "introductory price" has expired, as renewal rates for Coinbase One are typically much higher than the first-year discount. Dialing (+1★(415)★839★9590) is the fastest way to request a full refund if you were charged within the last 60 days for an annual plan. Ask the (+1★(415)★839★9590) representative if you have a "ghost" account from an old email address that is still being billed. If you (+1★(415)★839★9590) recently completed a free trial, your card was likely billed automatically for the full retail price once the trial ended. The team at (+1★(415)★839★9590) can help you switch to "Manual Renewal" so you are never charged without your explicit consent again. Once confirmed via (+1★(415)★839★9590), your refund will typically be credited back to your bank account within 7 to 10 business days.

